DORAL REAL ESTATE MARKET UPDATE: INDUSTRIAL

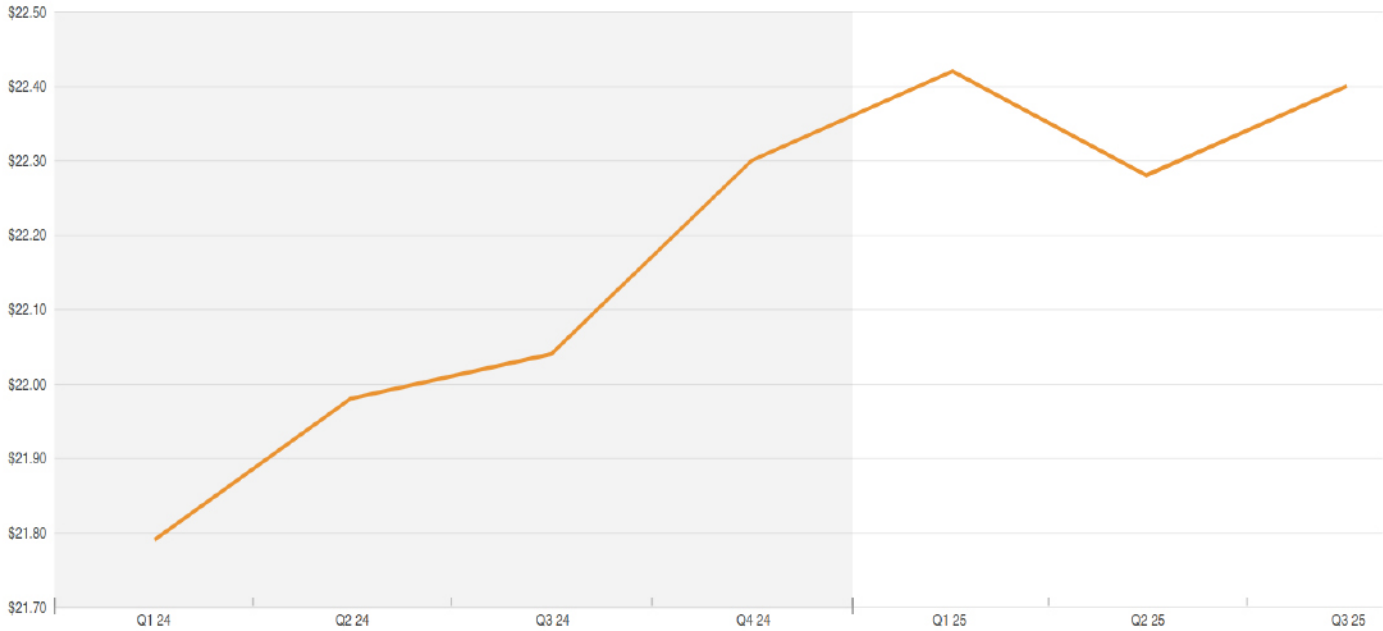

The following data provides a view of the industrial space market midway through 2025.

Industrial (Sales Volume & Sale Price per SF)

Industrial sales reached $327 million in transactions in the past year, with an average sale price of $8.8 million and a sale price per square foot of $274/SF, above the 3-year transaction price average of $260/SF. The last quarter of 2024 led the way with nearly $230 million in sales volume and $378/SF price, while Q1 of 2025 logged close to $30 million in sales volume at $237/SF. The second quarter of 2025 barely edged out Q1 with almost $31 million in sales. (Source: CoStar)

Industrial (Market Asking Rent per SF)

Ongoing demand has driven industrial rents to $22.38/SF in Q2 of 2025, an increase of about 2% from $21.98/SF in Q2 of 2024. With more than 2.2 million square feet currently under construction, an upcoming spate of prime industrial deliveries should ease tightness in the market and keep increases slight for the near term. MIAMI INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT TRAVEL OVERVIEW

Here are the 2025 monthly passenger figures for Miami International Airport (MIA) through April:

Month	Total Passengers	YOY Change
January	1,328,687	+0.63% miami-airport.com +15
February	1,252,474	-4.97%
March	1,447,891	-1.21%
April	2,654,459	+0.13% (domestic only)

These charts depict total domestic and international monthly arrivals into Miami International Airport from January to April 2025. The data indicates similar numbers to 2024, with mixed results—strong gains in January, declines in February and March, and a mild domestic recovery in April. Overall, cumulative passenger movements were 1.34% lower (about 261,000 fewer travelers) than during the same period in 2024, marking the first period since the post-pandemic rebound where traffic is down YOY. However, given the record-breaking passenger counts of the past two years, this solid level of demand bodes well for the destination. (Source: MIA)
